Oak Park

Oak Park is a village adjacent to the western side of the city of Chicago. It's the 25th largest municipality in Illinois as measured by population, and has easy access to downtown Chicago due to public transportation such as the 'L' Blue and Green lines, CTA buses, and Metra commuter rail. Oak Park has a bustling business district and active arts community, resulting in part from its favorable location adjacent to Chicago, only 7 miles west. It is home to numerous businesses and arts & entertainment organizations. With several tourist attractions, Oak Park receives national and international tourists throughout the year. The fledgling arts district on Harrison, bounded by Austin Avenue to the east and Ridgeland Avenue to the west, is currently experiencing a revival with boutique galleries, shops and restaurants providing shopping and nightlife. Oak Park is home to several regional and national events annually.
