Location: Andersonville

Welcome to a little bit of Sweden — the eccentric bit to be exact. What we locals love about Andersonville is its artisanal flair and one-of-a-kind charm. It's also home to one of Chicago's largest LGBTQ+ communities and is integral to the city's annual Pride celebrations. Along Clark Street's restaurant strip, you can take your pick from cozy diners, craft brew emporiums, tried-and-true holes in the wall, and some of the city's best comfort food spots. Between its historic architecture, dynamic bar scene, and bustling main street, Andersonville is a thriving example of a charming urban neighborhood.
